HE WANTED TO GO HOME.

Georgia Boy's Unique Excuse For Getting Out of His Work.

One Saturday in July, says J. H. Hale in the World's Work, I came upon a boy of fifteen or sixteen crying as though his heart would break. In reply to my inquiry I was told, "Mother is dead, and I want to go home!" Of course, I said to him, "Well, go and see the superintendent, and he will give you an order on the office." The boy moaned, "I dun see him, and he won't let me off till bell time."

This seemed hard when one boy's work would count for so little among several hundred, so I took him in the buggy and hurried back to the office, giving an order that he be paid off and let go at once; but I was politely told that "the superintendent's orders are that no one is to be paid till night."

After I had insisted in rather strong language that I might possibly be a bigger man than even the superintendent, the lady assistant began a series of sharp questions, finally bringing out the date of "mother's" death as "de 26th ob last Feb'y!" I sneaked off, realizing that there were some phases of the peach business I had better not meddle with.

Peachblow Porcelain.

The peachblow porcelain is of Chinese manufacture and is about 300 years old. It is not, as sometimes supposed, the designation of a particular shade of color, but a rare and peculiar glaze, which not merely covers the surface of the vessel, but penetrates the entire texture of the article, so that if the same be broken the internal structure is identical with that of the surface. The method by which this result is reached is unknown, and much money has been expended in vain to discover it. The ware is in a sense, therefore, the result of a happy accident.

Specimens of it are rare in China today, where it is prized as highly as anywhere else. Most of that of which there is definite knowledge was taken from China by the Dutch in the days when they monopolized the trade with that country and from Holland has made its way over Europe. The specimens in this country have almost all of them come either from Holland direct or by way of France, whither pieces of it were early carried by the Dutch, arousing unusual interest among the French potters.

Pearls Before Swine.

The evening was advanced when a venerable squire of ancient name and lineage arose to propose a toast. Scarcely had I heard one more successful. He began modestly. "It is always well to begin modestly," said the good man, "that for a plain country squire like myself to address a dignified body like the presidency of St. Andrews, including in its number various learned professors, is indeed to cast pearls before swine."

He had to pause long ere he got further. Thunderous applause broke forth. The swine cheered as if they would never leave off. We all knew perfectly what the laird meant. I was sitting next to him as he spoke the words. I heard them with these ears.—"Twenty-five Years of St. Andrews."

Date on Silver Coins.

Most people have an old silver coin of some kind which they are keeping as a relic either for sentimental reasons or because they think it worth more than its face value. In some instances the date or the inscription has been worn away and it is impossible to read it even with a strong glass.

The following method, originally practiced at the mint to discover the genuine coins when silver was called in, will enable any one to read an obliterated inscription:

Make the poker redhot in the fire and then place the silver coin on it. The inscription will be plainly visible in a greenish hue, which will fade as the coin cools.—London Chronicle.

Sparing Her Feelings.

"You don't write," the treasurer of the savings bank said gently to the old colored woman. "Just touch the pen." She did so, her business was concluded and her feelings were spared. The official might have said, "You can't write," and that would have been true, but the difference between plain truth and considerate truth is sometimes as marked as the distinction between a boor and a gentleman.—Youth's Companion.

Not What He Wanted.

Yerringer—This life is full of uncertainties. One can never tell what is going to happen.

Towie—Yes, I guess that's so. What is the matter just at present?

Yerringer—Oh, nothing much. Only I called on old Gruffam for his daughter's hand, and I got the old man's foot instead.—Boston Transcript.

"Good men, you know, are scarce." "Yes, I know, and even bad men have to make themselves so at times."—Boston Courier.

Fires Which Never Go Out.

There are domestic fires burning in England today which have never been out for hundreds upon hundreds of years.

At the old fashioned farmhouses in the dales of Yorkshire peat is still burned. The fuel is obtained from the moors, and stacks of it are kept by the farmers in their stack garths.

The country roundabout is noted for its "girdle cakes," which are made from dough baked in quaint pans suspended over the peat fires.

These fires are kept glowing from generation to generation, and the son warms himself at the fire which warmed his sire and his grandsire and his grandsire's sire and which will warm his son and his son's son.

There is a fire at Castleton, in the Whithy district, which has been burning for over 200 years. The record probably is held by a farmhouse at Osmotherby, in the same district. This fire has been burning for 500 years, and there are records to show that it has not been out during the last 300 years.

Could Not Pass the Examination.

A southern woman speaks with pride of the many years of faithful, loving service rendered by her dusky housekeeper. Not only is "Aunt Caline" valued for her executive ability, but her judgment is so wise in most cases that her mistress has come to depend greatly upon her opinion in certain matters.

"Do you think James would be a good man for us to take up into the mountains with us this summer, Aunt Caline?" she asked one day, referring to a handsome young dandy who had been for six weeks in her employ.

Aunt Caline folded her arms and assumed her most judicial aspect. "Missy Kate," she said firmly, "I done watch dat boy eber since he come hyer, an' I done test him. When I tested him in de case ob de spring bed I foun' out dat when it come to liftin' dat boy was all take hold an' mighty little raise. Missy Kate, an' dat's a pore sign ob character, in my opinion."

Like Any Other Man.

The following story is told in reference to Mr. Lowell's second marriage: At the time when rumors of the event became current among his friends one of them, a staunch admirer of the first Mrs. Lowell and a firm believer in her husband's permanent widowhood, took it upon herself to deny the gossip every time it met her. Finally, however, the announcement came to her from such extremely good authority that her faith was shaken.

She wrote frankly to Mr. Lowell that she had heard the reports and persistently denied them, but now began to doubt her right to do so. She begged him to let her know the true state of affairs, whether she was to believe him a never-to-be-consolated husband or, after all, "just like any other man."

The answer was prompt and brief: "Dear Madam—Yours, like any other man."

They Don't Like Rain.

"There's a queer thing about Italian laborers," said a contractor who employs a great many of them, "and that is that they absolutely refuse to work in the rain. Stop a minute and think. Did you ever see a gang of them working in the streets, digging trenches or doing any other manual labor in the rain? Well, you never did and probably never will. Just as soon as a shower sets in, no matter how slight, they will scramble for cover. If the rain continues, they will soon complain of feeling sick and knock off for the day. One fellow will have a sore throat, another will be doubled up with pains in his stomach, and others will suddenly acquire severe ailments of all sorts. It is useless to attempt to do anything with them, and pretty soon they will all go trooping home."—Philadelphia Record.

Living Indelible Ink.

If the shell of the Purpura lapillus be broken there is seen on the back of the animal, just under the skin, a slender, whitish vein which contains a yellow liquor. When this liquor is applied to linen with a small brush and exposed to the sun it becomes successively green, blue and purple, and finally settles into a brilliant unchangeable crimson. Housewives of New England have growing abundantly on the sea-side rocks in their neighborhoods little living bottles of indelible ink, not to be excelled in beauty or durability by any manufactured product, since neither acid nor alcohol will affect this juice of the whelk.

Good Advice.

"Help! Help!" came the cry of distress through the midnight stillness. The policeman in the neighboring doorway stirred uneasily. "Advertise in the want column," he muttered and resumed his nap.—Philadelphia Press.

A celebrated physician declares that the increase in height and weight of Britons and Americans during the last half century is chiefly due to the increased consumption of sugar.

THE GIANT'S CAUSEWAY.

Formation and Appearance of This Odd Freak of Nature.

The Giant's causeway is situated at the northern extremity of County Antrim, a short distance from Port Rush, Ireland. It consists of countless hosts of basaltic pillars, varying in shape from a pentagon to an octagon, the average length of each column or pillar being about eighty feet, the whole stacked so closely together that a knife blade could hardly be inserted between them. But the formation of these pillars is not the least wonderful part about them, for, although they may be counted by thousands and tens of thousands, each column is fashioned with a symmetry that suggests a mason's handiwork. Their composition is a perfect fusion of one-half flinty earth, one-quarter lime and clay, one-quarter almost pure iron, each pillar being divided into regular lengths or joints which come together as a perfect, natural ball and socket union.

Although to be found in small detachments (imbedded in the cliffs, sands, etc.) for some distance along the shore, the principal aggregations forming the causeway proper consist of three projections or tongues known as little, middle and grand causeways. These singular columns are of different lengths and present an astonishing appearance as they stand, an army of at least 40,000 strong marshaled on the shores of Erin as if ever ready to do battle with the rising tide.

The Word "Joss."

"It's a mistake to suppose that 'joss' is a Chinese word," says a retired ship's carpenter. "I've traveled a good bit in the orient in my time, and among the odds and ends of interesting information I picked up was a knockout of the genuineness of 'joss' as a Chinese word. Chinamen only know 'joss' when they come in contact with Europeans. A Chinese priest that I became chummy with in Hankow told me that there was no such word in Chinese. He explained that the word was a corruption of the Spanish word 'Dios' and had come into use through the missionaries. Many early missionaries, he said, were Spanish priests, and their pronunciation of 'Dios' was speedily corrupted into 'joss' by native tongues and applied to the Chinese deities. It's only on the derstord by Chinamen. In the interior, the priest told me, the Celestials had no knowledge of it."—Philadelphia Record.

Street Etiquette.

In meeting a lady in a public thoroughfare in America a gentleman always waits for her bow of recognition before lifting his hat or addressing her. In Europe, however, the contrary is the established rule, it being the gentleman's place to bow first, when, if the lady desires not to recognize him, she ignores his salutations, thus giving the cut direct. It is not good form in any place for a lady to stop a gentleman in the street for the purpose of chatting with him, though she may with perfect propriety pause to speak if he take the initiative. Prolonged talks in the street are not, however, considered good form, even between persons of the same sex, the better plan being to walk on slowly until the conversation is concluded.—Detroit Free Press.

Why Coughing Is Weakening.

The amount of energy expended in coughing is very considerable. Indeed one of the patient statisticians for which Germany is renowned has calculated that a patient who coughs once every quarter of an hour for ten hours expends energy equivalent to 250 units of heat, which may be translated as equivalent to the nourishment contained in three eggs or two glasses of milk. In normal respiration the air is expelled from the chest at the rate of four feet per second, whereas in violent coughing it may attain a velocity of 300 feet.

Considerate.

Paterfamilias—See here! What does this mean? The parlor clock is stopped. Mr. Nicefellow was here last night, as usual, wasn't he?

Daughter—Yes, pa, and I told him what you said about the cost of coal and gas in the parlor every night, and we began to wonder how we could economize for you, and finally Mr. Nicefellow decided that we could at least stop the clock and save wear and tear on the works, you know.

Managing John.

"John," she said softly, "have you been saying anything about me to mother lately?"

"No," replied John. "Why do you ask?"

"Because she said this morning that she believed you were on the eve of proposing to me. Now, I do not wish you to speak to mother when you have anything of that kind to say. Speak to me, and I'll manage the business with mother."

And John said he would.

The Vicious Latin Quarter.

"After two years of life in the Quartier Latin," says Charles Theodore Murray, "where I got my studies of French character for 'Mile. Fouchette,' I may freely say that it is the worst place in the world to send a young man or woman if you entertain any hope of meeting him or her in heaven."

"I have had much experience in the role of journalist and have investigated the slums of London and Liverpool, know the 'Tenderloin' of New York and the 'attractions' at Berlin and Vienna, but for downright Satanic ingenuity of viciousness and gilded debauchery you must go to the Quartier Latin, for it is here that immorality is accepted as a virtue, and real virtue has no line of demarcation to distinguish it from immorality."

"No young man or young woman can survive such environment untarnished, and many are ruined for life. That which, like London slums, is repulsive is not dangerous. It is attractive vice, sugar coated immorality, which is dangerous, and that is what young men and women find in the Quartier Latin."

How Coal Was First Named.

Curiously, the word coal was in use long before as well as long after the commencement of the coal trade, with a meaning quite different from that which it now has. The term originally belonged to wood fuel and was applied in particular to wood which had been charred, or what is now called charcoal.

When the trade in mineral coal began, this was usually distinguished by the singular name of sea coal. It would seem that from having been gathered in early times on the seashore, more especially of Northumberland, along with seaweed and other wreckage cast up by the waves, this peculiar substance was supposed to be of marine origin. From this circumstance and its resemblance to wood coal in color and burning properties it obtained the name of sea coal, by which it was so long and so widely known. Then in the course of time, as the new fuel gained upon and superseded the old, the simple name of coal became universally transferred to it.

Making It Plain.

ago Record-Herald, generously sets himself the task of giving out valuable information as to the amount of food one should eat. He proceeds to make the matter plain to the masses by saying:

"If you desire to know how much you ought to eat per diem, you must first determine whether you are temperamentally anabolic or katobolic. Then, taking into account your age, sex, size, the amount of exercise you get and the temperature of the atmosphere, you should calculate the amount of food necessary to maintain the minimum weight of the body consistent with the best health of which you are capable."

Hereafter there should be no excuse whatever for overeating or undereating.

The Discovery of Florida.

Juan Ponce de Leon, sailing from Porto Rico in search of new land, discovered Florida on March 27, 1512. He landed near St. Augustine, planted the cross and took possession in the name of the Spanish monarch. In 1763 a treaty ceding east and west Florida to Great Britain, in exchange for Havana and the western part of Cuba, was ratified. In 1781 part of Florida was ceded to Spain, and in 1783 Great Britain ceded east and west Florida to Spain. On Feb. 22, 1819, east and west Florida were ceded to the United States by treaty and purchase, Spain receiving $5,000,000.

The Way He Gloated.

Two buses were travelling down Regent street in close proximity when the conductor of the foremost one took off his badge and dangled it in the air, to the obvious annoyance of the rival driver.

"What did you do that for?" asked a passenger.

"Why," said the conductor, pointing a derisive thumb at the infuriated driver, "his father was 'ung.'—London Tit-Bits.

Origin of Spoons.

Two natural objects seem to have furnished the model for the spoon to primitive man—the river or sea shell and the leaf of plants. In southern China shell spoons are still used that are closely reproduced in the familiar porcelain spoon of that country, while metal spoons are found in India on which are reproduced even the veins of the leaves from which they were copied.

Foolish Question.

Hasker—Hello, Crabbe, what are you going to do with the camera? Crabbe—Going to bore an artesian well in our dining room with it. You didn't suppose I was going to take pictures, did you?

ENTIRELY TOO CLEVER.

Experience of a Doctor in Prescribing For a Patient.

An anonymous physician who has written some "confessions" for the Independent tells this story about himself:

"I received a request to call from an old patient who was afraid she was taking scarlet fever. I responded at once. The patient was one of two elderly sisters whom I had attended for many years. I greeted her in the sitting room and noted her pulse while in the act of shaking hands with her. By some witty remark I contrived to make her laugh, which enabled me to see her tongue. Then I said in a playful tone: 'If you will get me a glass I will treat you to some of my patent soda water.' She did so. I put a tablet in the water and she drank it."

"I want you to know that I take pride in my original methods. I try to educate my patients to like, and not to dread, the visits of the doctor. In this case all of my work had been done without the direct knowledge of the patient and I felt very good over it. So I bade my patient goodbye with extreme cheerfulness."

"She looked surprised, and then said: 'Of course you will come upstairs and see my sister?' 'Not today,' I said. 'Give her my respects.' 'Why,' she said, looking mystified and startled, 'how strangely you talk!' 'Strangely?' I echoed. 'Why?' 'Because I sent for you to prescribe for my sister and you decline to see her.' I flashed over my mind in an instant. I had prescribed for the wrong sister. I was entirely too clever."

Where Smoking Is a Sin.

Palgrave, in his interesting book describing his journey to the sacred city of Mecca, gives an amusing account of his conversation with a mollah.

On asking the reverend gentleman which he considered the most deadly of all sins the holy man replied:

"Smoking the shameful."

"And next, O son of the prophet?"

"Drinking."

"Are these the two greatest sins, father?"

"Verily, my son."

"And murder?"

"Ah, that's nothing—nothing. It's forgivable."

"And stealing?"

"Ah, that's forgivable too."

"It is the unforgivable crime," replied the mollah sternly and looking keenly at the fictitious Mohammedan.

And this is the Afghan's creed. Murder and theft are forgivable crimes, but for smoking and drinking there is no redemption.

The Man With the Fiddle.

The little old man fiddled very hard as he stood near the curbstone in Twenty-third street. The passersby looked at him curiously. Some of them smiled. No one gave him a penny. Presently he was seen to totter and then to fall, but he kept on fiddling just the same, even when he lay prone upon his back. A man helped him to his feet. He never missed a note. A little boy who had been regarding him with keen interest went up to him. Suddenly the bow hung poised and motionless. The little old man had run down. The boy bought him for a quarter, however. The vender showed him how to start the fiddle up again, and the two went off together, happy and contented.—New York Press.

Unconvinced.

A Presbyterian preacher in the central part of New York state tells this story on himself:

"It was Sunday morning, and I had started for church. The family were preparing to follow when the youngest, a five-year-old, protested, 'I do not want to go to church.'"

"I don't feel much like it myself, Fred, this morning," replied his mother, "but we must go. Father has to go—has gone already, and he has to preach."

"Yes," said Fred, unconvinced, "but we have to listen, and that's worse."

How Do You Make a Circle?

The intelligence of people may be gauged by asking them to make a circle on paper with a pencil and noting in which direction the hand is moved. The good student in a mathematical class draws circles from left to right. The inferiority of the softer sex, as well as the male dunces, is shown by their drawing from right to left. Asylum patients do the same.—London Family Doctor.

Display of Wealth Unwise.

"There is nothing more unwise," said the friend, "than a needless and ostentatious display of wealth."

"That's right," answered Mr. Grippier Sorghum; "there are enough people trying to get it away from you without issuing any challenges."—Washington Star.

If a man makes a prediction, people forget it if it does not come true, but he will not let them forget it if it comes true.—Aitchison Globe.

The Memphis Commercial-Appeal calls attention to the fact that Mark Hanna, in his late address to the Ohio Republicans, failed to allude to the be-fless dinner pail. Who said the tariff cut no figure with the meat trust? The dispatches from Chicago state that some of the big packers who are wanted to complete the gigantic meat combine have refused to go into it until they are assured that Congress will not place Canadian meats on the free list. If the placing of Canadian meats on the free list would "bust" the trust, Congress should be prompt to act. The trust has robbed the people long enough. If the colored people of Maysville will not patronize their schools better, the Board of Education should reduce the number of teachers. The reports this week showed an enrollment of only eleven pupils in the Principal's room, five in the first assistant's and ten or eleven in another room. One teacher could easily look after that many pupils, and it's squandering the public money to be paying for three teachers to do this work. If the Board of Education wishes to make itself solid with the people of Maysville it should adopt a course of study for the various schools and then pass a rule prohibiting any change for ten years. This thing of changing the course annually is fine for the book publishing trust, but it's hard on the poor people who have children to educate. The BULLETIN is told of a poor man living in the First ward who had to pay out over $15 this week for school books. This is only one of the many in the course of study to suit the whim or fancy of every teacher should be stopped. There's nothing uncertain about this plank in the Ohio Democratic platform: "Appreciating the burning and pressing necessity for relief from the extortions to which the people are subjected, we condemn the Republican party for the enactment and maintenance of a tariff law which fosters trusts and enables certain combinations and corporations to charge American consumers exorbitant prices for the products of their factories, while selling the same class of goods to European consumers at greatly reduced prices. Any law which thus permits American manufacturers to rob American consumers, either directly or indirectly, is wrong in morals, un-American, un-Democratic and subversive of good government, and, so far as it so operates, we demand its immediate and unconditional repeal." THE BOWLERS. Cooper's Wonders Were Badly Defeated by Purnell's "Bums" Last Evening. He found it profitable to pay unusual attention to his newspaper advertising in the summer months. Advertisers in a year's time have to accept many stamps in payment for goods. To refuse to do so would be to drive away patronage. The different departments of the government will not accept stamps as payment but will invariably return them with a request to forward currency. A mail order advertiser wished to secure a copy of a patent, so sent the amount necessary in one-cent stamps. A few days afterwards a letter was received from the patent office notifying him that stamps are not receivable by the office in payment for fees or dues, but the order would be refilled upon receipt of five cents in currency. THE BEE HIVE

OPENING MONDAY, SEPT. 8th.

Queen
Quality

$3.00

Never in Maysville has such an attractive array of fine footwear been displayed as may now be seen at our store. "Queen Quality" shoes, of which we have many styles, have won a national fame. We want every woman in Maysville to make their acquaintance. They're an advanced idea in American shoe making—a combination of all little points that make satisfactory footwear. In our wide experience we have handled the product of many noted factories, and have had unlimited opportunities for judging the comparative merits of different makes of women's shoes. There is not in the whole world to-day finer footwear at the price than "Queen Quality." The best shoe wanted the best store and the best store wanted the best shoe. The conditions exactly fit. Perhaps the most wonderful feature in "Queen Quality" is that of perfect fit and absolute comfort, which they possess in a greater degree than any other shoe made. In the extensive variety there are shoes for every occasion, from the thoroughly mannish to the most dainty feminine shapes and lasts to fit all types of feet. The styles are strictly correct, the leathers the finest and are chosen by the makers with jealous regard for the reputation already won. The correct forecasts of fall styles now here for your inspection—shapes that all Maysville will be wearing a month later. We have sole right of sale for Maysville.

Rev. Walter S. Rounds, pastor of the Ripley Christian Church, has resigned to accept a call to the pastorate of a church near Kalamazoo, Mich.

Go to Buckner Goodman for fine old whiskies, wines and brandies, by the quart or gallon. Bottled goods a specialty. Two doors above Omar Dodson's.

Miss Mildred Mitchell and Mr. Jack Wilson were married several weeks ago at Tallahassee, Florida. The bride is a sister of the Misses Mitchell of Dover.

Mr. Charles Reynolds, of Dover, lost a valuable horse this week. He drove to Dickson & Myall's stable Monday and discovered the animal was sick and Tuesday the horse died of colic.

The marriage of Miss Martha Baldwin Ranson, formerly of this city, to Major Louis Sanford, of New Castle, Ky., took place Thursday at the home of the bride's father, Mr. F. B. Ranson, at Wilkinsburg, a suburb of Pittsburg.

FIRE THURSDAY EVENING.

Ryan's Saloon and Restaurant Guttered By Flames and Childs' Cigar Factory Badly Damaged.

Ryan's saloon and restaurant on the west side of Market street, three doors north of Second, was gutted by fire late Thursday afternoon, and Childs' cigar factory adjoining it on the north was badly damaged by water, the damage to the stock of raw material and manufactured goods being especially heavy, it is thought. G. W. Rogers & Co.'s wholesale liquor establishment just south of the saloon and restaurant also suffered some damage from water.

The fire started on the second floor of the saloon and restaurant, and was caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove. The second floor is a complete wreck. Much of the stock on the first floor was gotten out. Mr. Ryan's saloon furniture and furnishings cost about $1,800, and the loss falls quite heavily on him, as he had no insurance. The building belongs to Mr. L. Roser and was insured for $1,000, which will probably cover the loss.

Mr. Childs had $3,000 insurance. The interruption to his business will add much to his loss. Mr. Rogers' loss is covered by insurance.

The Barlow Minstrels To-night.

To-night this old and well known minstrel organization will be the attraction at the Washington Opera House. While it is one of the oldest minstrel companies on the road, its great success is due to the management for the energy it has displayed in keeping fully up-to-date. Among those prominent in the amusement world who will be seen and heard with this company are F. P. Russell, monologist, Kates Bros., premier acrobats and Spanish ring experts, Cameron and Toledo in an act entitled "The Enchanted Grotto," with elegant costumes and elaborate stage setting and wierd electrical effects, Coburn and Baldwin, the favorites for many a day to come, with their musical comedy act, Carl Charles, "The Appodal," Jennings and Renfrow, tripple buck and wing dancers, vocalists, etc. W. A. Wolf, the wonderful basso, Harry Meyrick, tenor, Lew Davenport, baritone, Chas. Cameron, descriptive tenor and several other of note. Altogether, this company will present "your money's worth" to better advantage than any other similar organization on the road. Seats now on sale at Nelson's.

Talk About the Best Fence

And you're bound to mention the "American." Its merits have been widely discussed and are familiar to those who have given it a trial. As a stock and all-purpose fence it must be acknowledged that it has no equal in the world. Made of large, strong, high-grade steel wires, heavily galvanized. Ample provides for expansion and contraction. Is practically everlasting and never goes wrong, no matter how great a strain is put on it. Will not mutilate, but does efficiently turn cattle, horses, hogs and pigs. Used as a division fence in towns or cities, the "American" is handsome, efficient and inexpensive. Every rod guaranteed by the manufacturer and by us. Call and see it. Can show you how it will save you money and fence your fields so they will stay fenced. All widths in stock and for sale only by

Frank Owens Hardware Company.

ORANGEBURG, Sept. 4th.—In the early 50's a sale of slaves took place in Orangeburg, opposite the old Howard Hotel. One of the slaves sold was Uncle Perry Jones, now a well-to-do stone mason, who owns his home on the outskirts of "burg." As Perry, then a young man, was stood up on the stone wall of the yard now fronting Mr. Charles Calvert's residence, so the would-be purchasers could view him, an old gentleman in the crowd burst into a loud laugh and said: "That's the funniest thing I ever seed. A one-eyed nigger, owned by a one-eyed master, offered for sale by a one-eyed auctioneer," which was a fact. And to put the cap sheaf on the odd occurrence, he was purchased by a one-eyed man, who died and left him to a one-eyed son, with whom he lived until freed. Uncle Perry laughs now when he tells the yarn and adds, "It beat de band—it did for a fact."

Along the picturesque banks of North Fork, just west of the Dickson pike covered bridge, there lives a colony of Culls, who are hard working, friendly, pleasant people. Although they are "Culls," they don't consider themselves the "pick of the batch," but just common, every-day people. The old grandfather Ab., long since dead, had a very marvelous frog story which he often related to open mouthed auditors. "It was jest this a way," he would begin. "One morning in early spring I was down to the Fork, and sein' as 'twas the first warm day that happened along, the frogs had come outen the mud and stuck their heads outen the water. Must a been hundreds of em! Bout time they started to holler real good, a blizzard come up the creek and friz the ice immediately half an inch thick, catching their heads outen the water. While I sot thar in the thicket, shiveren and watchin', a flock of turkey buzzards come along and picked the eye outen every blamed frog in the puddle. And that's the way it happened to come to pass that North Fork is chuck full of blind frogs ever since. If you don't believe it I can show you the thickest I sot in and watched the durned critters."

Woman is often referred to by man as "doubtful his joys and halving his sorrows." That may be complimentary but it would seem to be rather hard on the woman. For in plain terms it means that where things are going well with the man his wife makes them go better. But when things are going ill with him, he expects the wife to share half his burden. And there's more truth than poetry in this presentation of masculine selfishness. Men don't appreciate the fact that the strain of motherhood alone is a burden bigger than all the loads that rest upon male shoulders. They see the wife grow thin, pale, nervous and worn without a thought that she is over-burdened. Among the pleasant letters received by Dr. Pierce are those from husbands who have waked up before it was too late to the crushing burdens laid upon the wife, and in the search for help have found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a restorative which has given back to the mother the health of the maiden and the maiden's happiness. "Favorite Prescription" always helps, and almost always cures. It has perfectly cured ninety-eight out of every hundred women who have used it when afflicted with diseases peculiar to women.

Easy Sailing.

Visitor—I would like to get you to teach me to sail a boat.

Boatman—Sail a boat? Why, it's easy as swimmin'. Jest grasp the main sheet with one hand an' the tiller with the other, an' if a flaw strikes ease up or bring 'ey to an' loose the halyards, but look out fer the gaff an' boom or the hull thing'll be in the water an' ye'll be upset; but if the wind is steady y'r all right, unless y'r too slow in luffin', 'cause then ye'll be upset sure. Jump right in an' try it; but, remember, whatever ye do, don't jibe!"

Bees and Ants.

Bees will place their honeycombs in any place regularly or irregularly shaped, and when they come to corners and angles they seem to stop and consider. Then they vary the shape of the cell, so that the space is exactly filled. It could not be done more satisfactorily if the whole thing had been worked out on paper beforehand. Ants make hard and smooth roads and drive tunnels compared to which man's efforts in making such things are insignificant.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Trifles.

There is no such thing in life as a trifle; every event and action, however unimportant seemingly, has a root below and a branch above which twist and turn into some other root and branch, making part of the great substance on and in which we live. Its presence and absence both affect the entire mass of which it forms a part.—Exchange.

He Was Not.

"Gentlemen, you wouldn't take me to be a member of a millionaire's family, would you?" inquired the young man.

"Frankly, we would not."

"Neither would the millionaire. I asked him last night."

"Is he really a humorist?"

"He certainly is," replied the sweet young thing. "He actually asked me to marry him."—New York Times.
